Jeanne Boillet is a globally experienced leader with a distinguished forty-year career advising leading multinational organisations through transformation, succession, acquisition and strategic change. She currently serves as a Non-Executive Director of Bombardier Inc., bringing extensive expertise in governance, innovation and risk oversight to the aerospace sector. Alongside this, she continues to mentor board directors and senior executives across industries, supporting leaders through transition, complexity and high-stakes decision-making.

During her career at EY, Jeanne held a range of senior leadership roles, serving as Lead Audit Partner to major international groups including Nestlé, LVMH, Danone, Carrefour, Air Liquide, Solvay and Syensqo. She was a member of the Global Assurance Executive Committee, Global Assurance Innovation Leader, and Assurance representative on EY's Global Sustainability Executive Committee, driving innovation across the profession through the adoption of advanced analytics, artificial intelligence and emerging technologies. Her work focused on enhancing audit quality, strengthening governance and oversight, and equipping organisations to navigate rapid technological change.

Jeanne also contributed significantly to EY's governance and sustainability agenda, chairing leadership discussions at COP28 and New York Climate Week, and serving on the committee overseeing the selection of the firm's Global CEO in 2023. She sponsored the 2025 Board of the Future survey through EY's EMEIA Centre for Board Matters, engaging extensively with Non-Executive Directors on the evolving role of boards, sustainability governance and stakeholder capitalism.

Earlier in her career, she led numerous international client relationships through periods of growth, restructuring and complex transactions, providing strategic insight on mergers, separations and organisational transformations.

Jeanne brings deep cross sector expertise in:

• Audit, assurance & governance – leadership of global audit portfolios and board level financial oversight in consumer, industrial and luxury sectors

• Digital transformation & emerging technology – shaping assurance innovation through analytics, artificial intelligence and blockchain applications

• Sustainability & future of boards – advancing sustainability reporting, assurance standards and research on evolving board responsibilities

• Global client & stakeholder engagement – managing complex executive and audit committee relationships across multinational organisations

Jeanne holds an MBA from ESSEC Business School, and is a certified Public Accountant in France and Switzerland. She has completed EY's Sustainable Finance Programme at INSEAD and Journey to the Boardroom Programme at Harvard Business School Executive Education.
